Online Educational Resource – Response to TRC

The University Library, with the support of the Gwenna Moss Centre for Teaching and Learning, would like to offer you a new resource to support Indigenization and reconciliation!

The 4 Seasons of Reconciliation is a 3-hour online educational learning resource which promotes a renewed relationship between Indigenous Peoples and Canadians, through transformative and engaging learning towards anti-racism education. The goal of this resource is to support faculty and staff at our university to provide diversity and inclusion awareness through a 3-hour asynchronous online courses. It features award-winning films, slideshows, videos, quizzes and a completion certificate offered by the University Library.

Currently, we are promoting the 4 Seasons of Reconciliation to faculty members for two purposes:

1. Professional Development: USask is a leader in building reconciliation and the collective awareness and knowledgeable on campus is growing more sophisticated every day. For those who intend to support reconciliation and your college and school's strategic goals in this area, the 4 Seasons of Reconciliation resource will provide you with the ideas and knowledge that explain the needs and ambitions promoted by the TRC, DRIP and the Indigenous Peoples of Canada. It is also a great recap of things you may have heard, but from a different perspective.
2. Teaching Resources: The developers of the 4 Seasons of Reconciliation built this resource specifically for educational institutions to adapt to their courses. By reviewing the PD online course, you will be introduced to videos, slideshows and other materials that can be used together or separately within your course. If you are interested in these materials, we ask that you complete the PD course first. The wealth of materials was designed with specific ideals and context that we wish to pass on to those who wish to use this material.
